Background

Diego Camilleri was born in Sydney, Australia, to Italian immigrant parents. Raised in a vibrant multicultural community, he grew up appreciating the richness of diversity, which later inspired his passion for diplomacy and cross-cultural understanding.

Diego's upbringing was marked by the influence of his grand aunt, a gemologist who took over the family gemstone business after his father's passing. Despite her wisdom and business acumen, her trusting nature led to heartbreak when she fell victim to a scam, losing the family fortune. This episode left a profound impact on Diego, shaping his cautious but empathetic nature.

As a young man, Diego pursued higher education in international relations and linguistics, later earning a degree in peace studies. These qualifications laid the groundwork for his lifelong career in diplomacy.

Career

Diego has worked for nearly three decades in various diplomatic capacities. From mediating conflicts in Asia to advising on peacekeeping operations in Africa, his assignments have taken him across continents.

For the past 10 months, Diego has been working across Europe. The last 6-7 months have seen him stationed in

[Location Placeholder: Registered Job Assignment] as a consulting diplomat with the United Nations Peacekeeping Missions (UNPKM).

Personal Life

Diego is a widower and a devoted grandfather to his 14-year-old grandson, Willian. His wife passed away several years ago, leaving him to navigate the challenges of life with resilience. Willian, who lives in Australia, remains a central figure in his life, and Diego cherishes every opportunity to connect with him.

Despite the geographical distance, Diego shares a close bond with his grandson. His frequent letters and calls to Willian reflect his deep love and commitment to family.
